centre college
danville, kentucky

college.
a place and time where we can find ourselves.
how strange. we had to know what kind of people we were before we could decide where to go to school.
so here we are in danville, kentucky. harvard of the south.
does that make us centre people?
maybe. maybe not.

four (or three . . . or two . . .) years at centre.
a time for experimentation,
for striking out independently, for breaking free of parental,
and self-imposed, inhibitions.
so they say. but we of the centre generation know it is actually a time for climbing back into the shell . . .

. . . an ivy-covered shell with a view.

in chartering our unboundless selves, we lose our way in the chaotic storm and crash into other lost souls. and in so doing, we find ourselves. at least for a moment.
we compromise for the sake of togetherness.
we search for love, for companionship. we find it, if we are lucky.

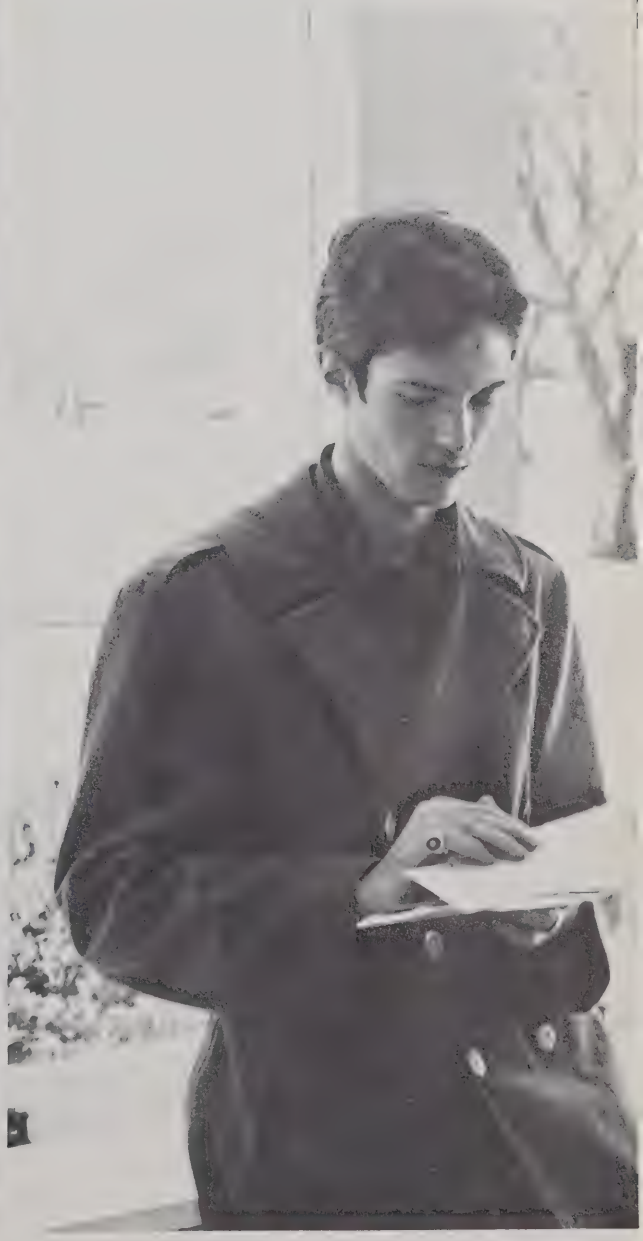
but some of us aren't.



we are all swirling, flaming autumn leaves. the wind has whisked us here. the same wind, treacherously gentle, will one day whisk us away . . .

. . . we may get an education. we may not.
but each of us will be a different person four years later.

listen outside our doors.
listen to the sounds of simon and garfunkel. in the middle of the dusty hall the notes mingle with bach, and grand funk, and joan baez.

who can understand the uniqueness
of the individual? it's like some art. who understand it? or do we make our own?

knock, knock, knock.
silence. finally, "yeah. who is it?'
a whisper.
"sure, come on in. no that's all right. i wasn't asleep. four o'clock's a good time for a talk."

if you're looking for a party school or a suitcase college, leave centre. here we don't know what it's all about. school. life. existence. but we find strength in others who don't know either. and who will admit it. and who come to us with the promise of brotherhood.

listen to the pseudo-intellectuals: "a good time is reading camus, not frolicking between the sheets with freshman 'chippies'."
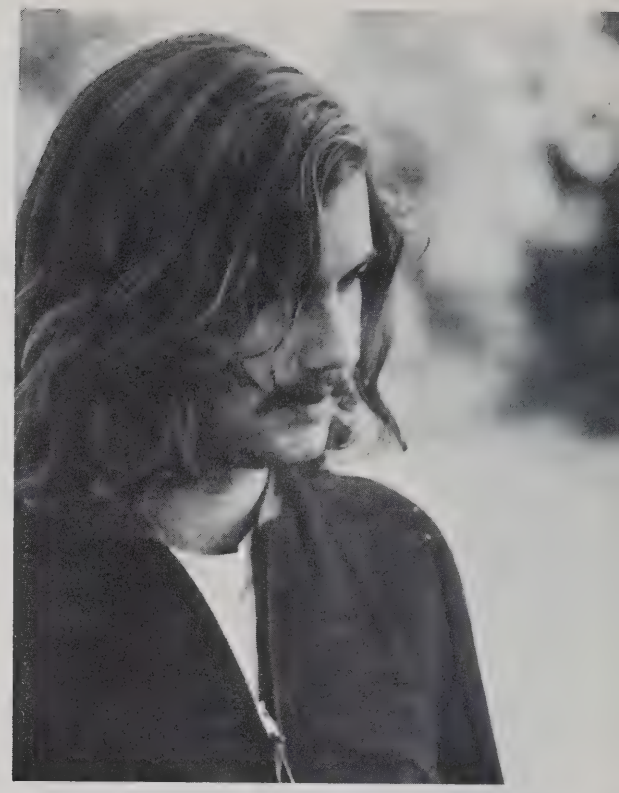
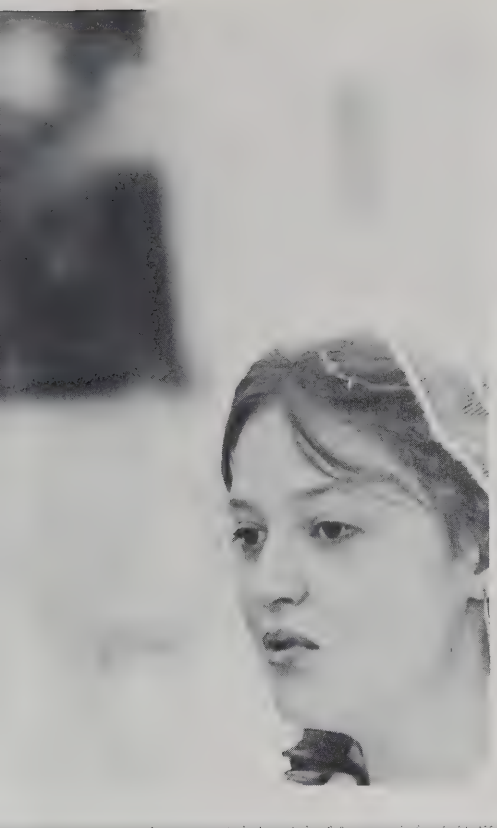
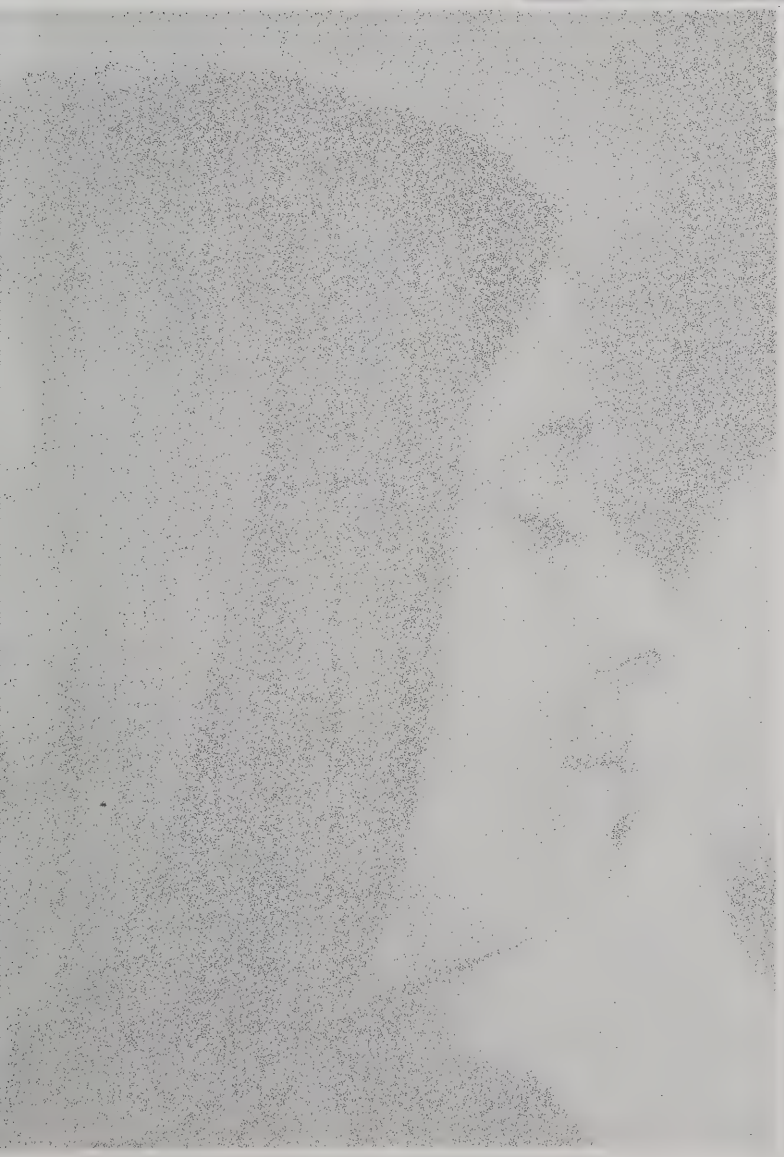
but what do they know.
happiness is where you find it.

we are a spectrum of people. we are greeks and freaks, men and women, black and white, boys and girls. we are frightened and courageous, intelligent and vacuous.

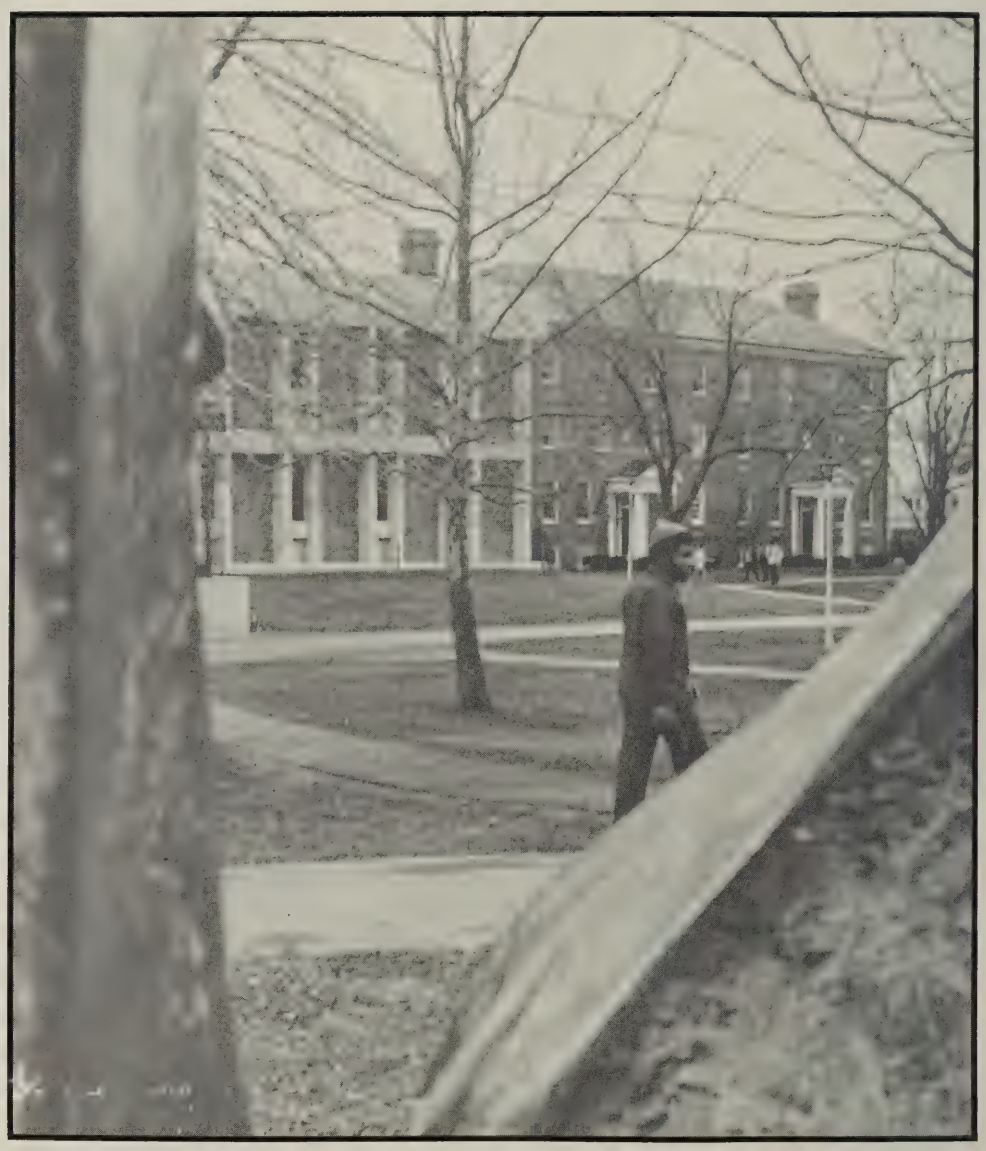


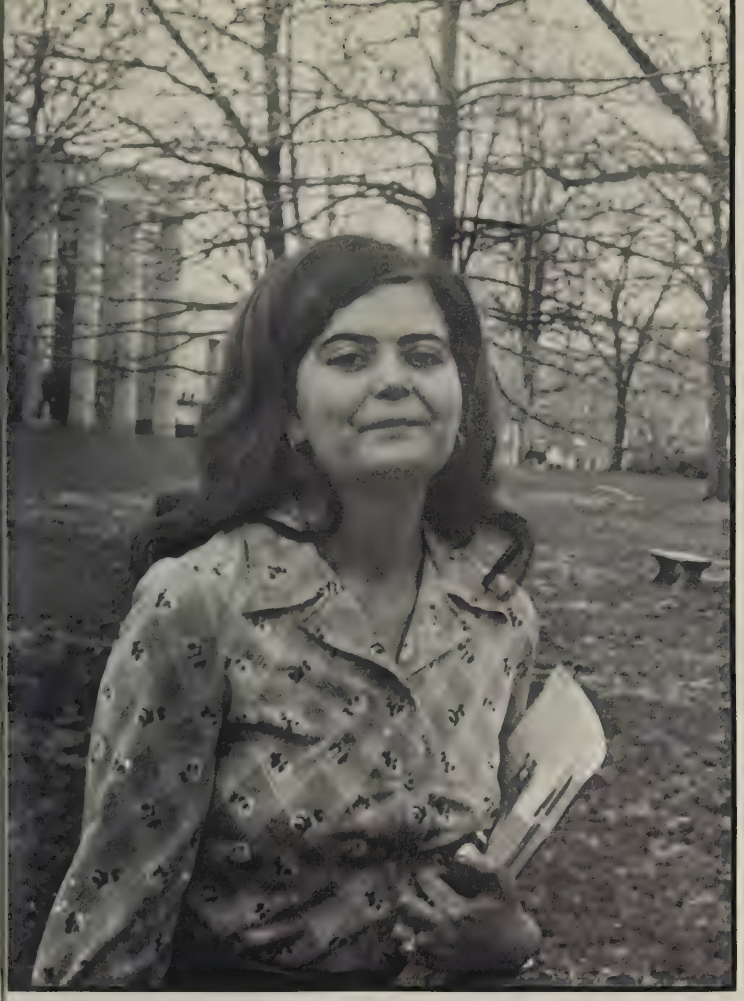




we all have come to this place to find ourselves. god, i pray we can make that discovery with pleasure instead of contempt.

three hours of classes a day can be rather barren and forlorn. without people.





we look hard. we strain our eyes. finding no one, do we turn and leave, embarrassed? or do we welcome comfort in solitude? our bodies need more than cold hot dogs and butter pecan ice cream. we long for that holy union which can be found only in silent conversation over a cup of hot tea and an after-dinner cigarette.

three times a day we part from this point of common origin known as cowan. three times a day we converge to become one. a single pair of eyes. searching. searching. searching the vast expanse of souls.

you, centre college, are a token to us from society, the gift is four years. four years to play games, be happy-go-lucky and think about things before we start playing the biggest game of all. we can protest, sing, dance, smoke, drink, make love, squander time, scream and cry.
be as irresponsible as we want.
and nobody is going to stop us.
who knows . . .

. . . we might come up with something lasting in the bargain.

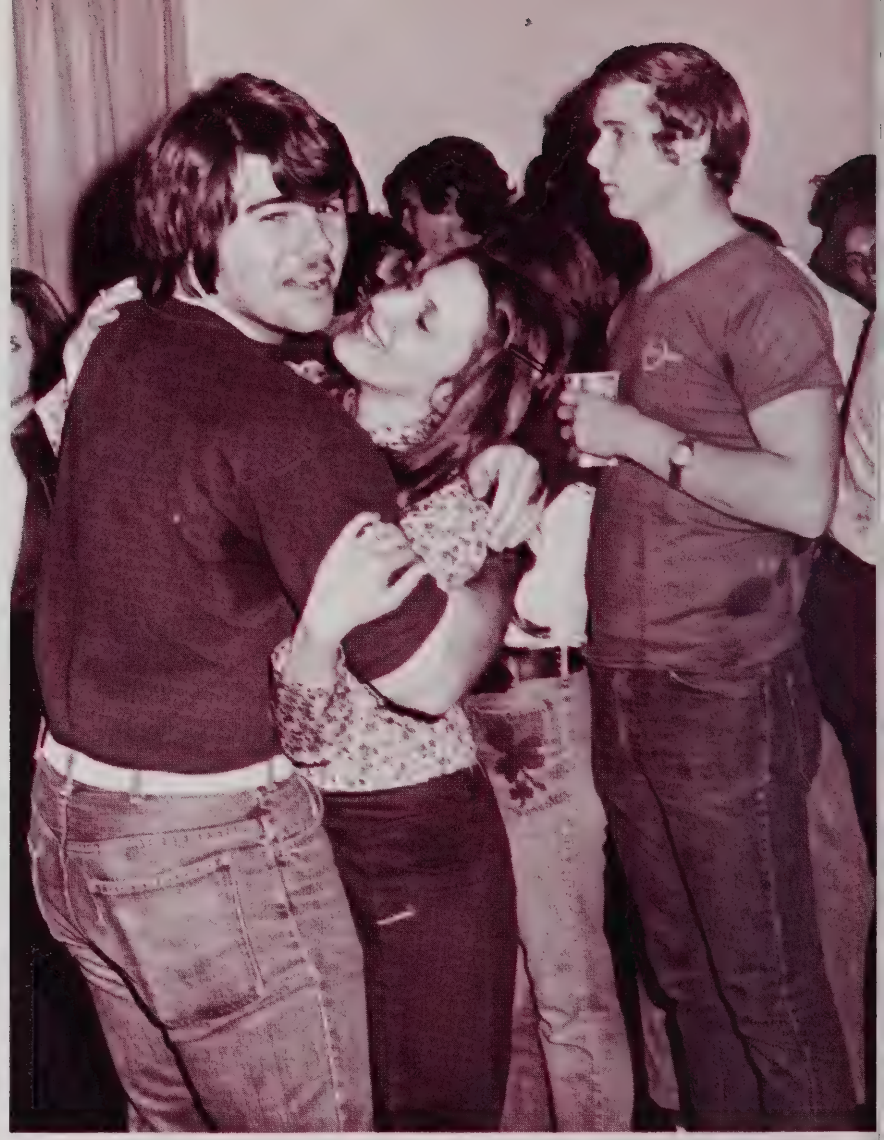
some of us have come to centre to sing — to sing the woes of living and the thrills of living. the rest of us? we search for our song.



laughing at our own traditions . . .
bleeding for our own lives . . . kissing beautiful faces . . . rolling our own . . .
there's more to life than books.

COLLEGE

every once in a while we have to get away. the campus closes in on us, suffocating us with its tenacious grip. the once silken green grass hurts our feet. the white columns of old centre sicken us.
so we flee . . .

we find comfort outside the centre world. with a horse . . . or a splashing stream . . . or a jug of wine . . . or a lonely tree . . .

and then the sun comes out. we seek its warmth, but something more. a cleansing of the self,
perhaps, brought only by a scorching of the skin.
a reaching for the warmth of nature rather than of others . . .

because in spring we seek solitude in hopes of finding . . .

. . . ourselves . . .

. . . whoever
and wherever we may be.

U.S.
ASTRONAUT

Peter
Robinson

fly away to england . . . where big ben welcomes us with his chime . . .
or washington, d.c. . . . where we witness the inauguration of the number one man . . . or mexico . . . where we view the ancient ruins . . .

. . . and our own mistakes . . .

it was the year of racial discontent, the result of a lounge in the basement of yerkes. the rumor started that we of different skins were not getting along.

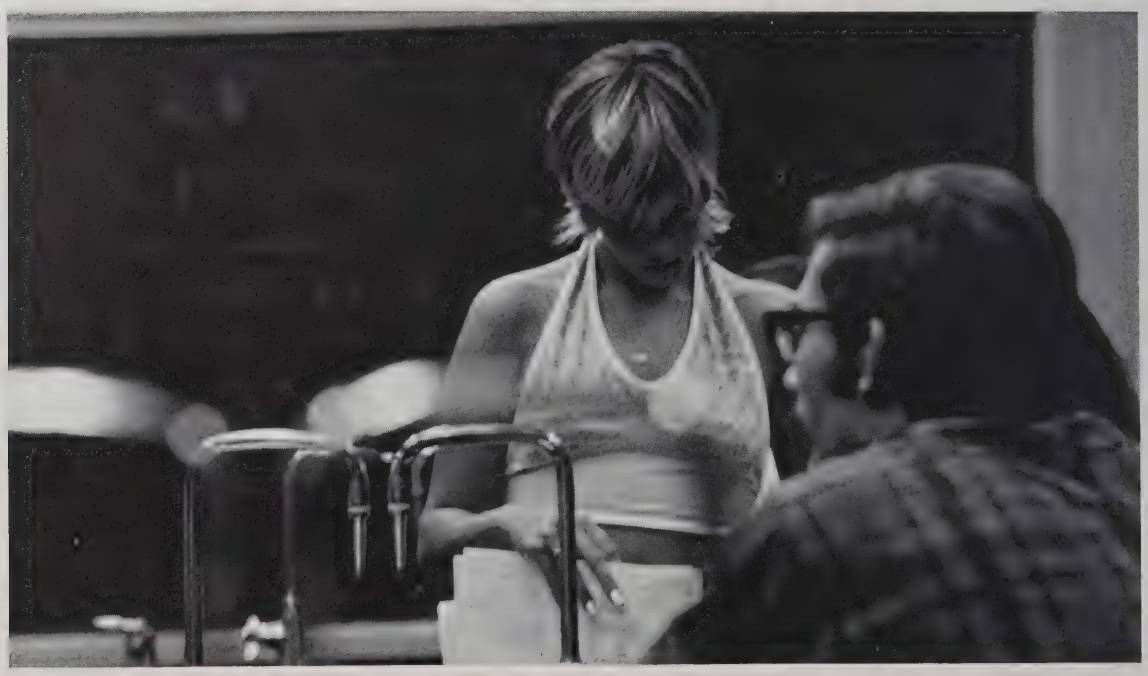
funny. we thought we were so happy we could have gone to the big state u 35 miles (and a six-pack) away. but we wanted more than undemanding professors . . . liquor . . . and basketball games. we wanted centre . . .

. . . we think . . .

we prepare for a full day's work donned in the official school uniform . . . blue jeans, work shirt, long hair, wire-rimmed glasses . . . and our best friend . . . or dog . . .



centre is more than straight a's . . .
who ever gets straight a's here anyway . . .
what about breck bashes? . . . and bean soup at freddie's? . . . runs to convenient and pdq? . . . and cosmic-level discussions in the hangout . . .

an 8:30 class?
never again . . . next time we'll fix our schedules to our sleeping habits . . . we've learned our lesson . . . and isn't learning what centre's all about?

our most important experiences take place over
a cold beer . . .
and on the lawn . . .
listening to blue grass
music . . .

homecoming '72 was 'the people's choice' . . . some choose to go to the football game, buy mums, take part in a parade . . . some chose to stay in the dorm and get stoned and laugh at the 'straights' . . . but those of us who went to watch the colonels fall in defeat also watched ann beyer crowned queen of the festivities by president spragens while surrounded by the court of becky barfield, debbie bolt, nancy easley, kathy graves, sally murphy, celeste moore, and betty tulou . . . and the sigs take the float prize given by the cento . . . as usual . . .

we're glad our job as editors is over . . . however we would not have missed the experience for anything, at times it was a hassle . . . getting pictures . . . getting people to cooperate . . . but, looking over the year, we realize that we have learned a lot . . . about the school, the people, and especially, ourselves.

we've done our best to present an overall view of life at centre in 1972-73 and we think we've succeeded . . . we hope you agree.

. . . are we southern, rural, aristocratic . . . or an entity seeking to be urban, liberal, progressive . . . uncertainty does exist . . . within our school . . . within our lives . . .

. . . centre . . . a mature place for mature people . . .

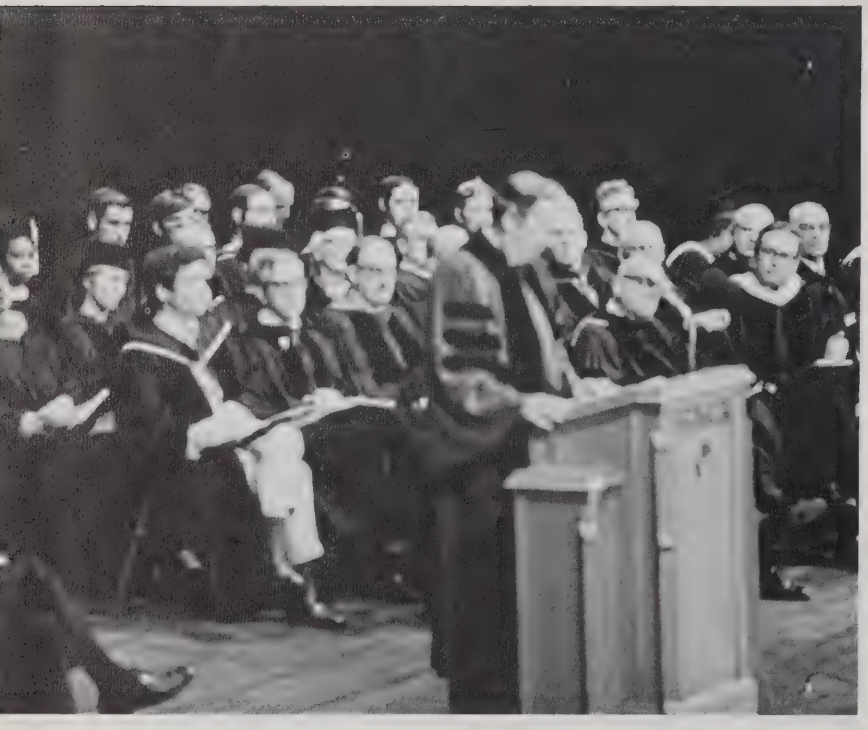
. . . a place to be . . .
and to become . . .



were we centre people?
maybe . . . maybe not . . .
but now we must leave the shell.

and when it's over . . .
